

Religion, Values and Ethics (RVE)

Religion, Values and Ethics (RVE) is a statutory requirement of the Curriculum for Wales and is mandatory for all learners from ages 3 to 16.

RVE guidance is located within the Humanities Area and incorporates a range of disciplinary approaches that can be used by learners to engage critically with a broad range of religious and non-religious concepts.

At Neyland we place emphasis on creating active citizens who show respect for themselves and others, RVE is central to this as we engage pupils learning in exploring and responding to questions raised by religious and ethical issues to enable them to develop the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to form varied responses to these questions.

Our Religion, Values and Ethics curriculum gives students the opportunity to:

- Understand and reflect on the ideas and religious beliefs of others
 - Appreciate the diversity of the world around them
 - Begin to construct arguments and to learn to defend them respectfully
- Through their lessons, students will gain knowledge about the beliefs and practices of religions and have opportunities to discuss issues which arise from religious belief, and ethical issues from a religious and an atheist perspective. We aim to develop their tolerance towards all people in society, to enable them to be reflective learners, and to develop empathy. We encourage them to achieve this through knowledge and understanding of religious and ethical issues that affect life in 21st century Britain.
